DESCRIPTION Summary of Building First World War memorial in the form of a Calvary cross, unveiled 1921. Reasons for Designation Clapham Park War Memorial is listed at Grade II for the following principal reasons: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> * Historic interest: as an eloquent witness to the tragic impact of world events on this local community, and the sacrifice it has made in the First World War; * Design: as an imposing and dignified war memorial in the form of a Calvary cross; Summary of Building First World War memorial in the form of a Calvary cross, unveiled 1921. * Group value: with the Grade II-listed Church of the Holy Spirit. History The aftermath of the First World War saw the biggest single wave of public commemoration ever with tens of thousands of memorials erected across England. This was the result of both the huge impact on communities of the loss of three quarters of a million British lives, and also the official policy of not repatriating the dead which meant that the memorials provided the main focus of the grief felt at this great loss. One such memorial was raised in Clapham Park outside the Church of the Holy Spirit as a permanent testament to the sacrifice made by the members of the local community who lost their lives in the First World War. It was unveiled on 14 November 1921 in a ceremony attended by the Bishop Suffragan of Woolwich and Major General Sir Cuthbert Wallace. Details The memorial is located outside the Church of the Holy Spirit, Narbonne Road and consists of a Calvary cross on a tapered octagonal shaft, which stands upon an octagonal plinth around which are two rows of Gothic-style inscriptions interspersed with symbolic decorations. The top row of the inscription reads IN EVER LIVING / MEMORY OF / THE MEN OF / THIS PARISH / WHO LAID DOWN / THEIR LIVES IN / THE WAR OF / MCMXIV XVIII the lower row reads MAY GOD / THE ALL MERCIFUL / GRANT TO THEM / AND TO ALL / WHO DIED FOR / THEIR COUNTRY / HIS LIGHT AND / EVERLASTING LIFE. The whole stands on an octagonal single-stepped base. Selected Sources

DESCRIPTION
House. Shown on tithe map of 1841 and probably c.1820s, though said to have earlier origins, extended to rear in late C19 and C20. Painted brick, weatherboarding on rear range; pyramidal slate roof to main house, with stacks on east elevation. Two storeys. A modest L-shaped plan, with three rooms per floor around stairwell set straight behind front door. Exterior very simple, with sixteen-pane window to first floor, blind window alongside, and early Victorian sash window to ground floor. Four-panelled door with central letterbox and doorknob, plain toplight. The chief interest of the house is in its little-altered interior, with a wealth of consistent and good-quality detailing from the 1820s. Staircase with cast-iron newel, otherwise stick baluster staircase with fine curved mahogany balustrade. Cornice brackets denote junction of vestibule and inner stair hall, which is fully panelled to the top of the house. Cupboard at the top of stair; moulded ceiling. The panelling can also be seen in the adjoining rooms: the kitchen and the bedroom above. Living room with thick banded ceiling mouldings and architraves; similar motifs in bedrooms above which retain their original fireplaces. Rear extensions added in later nineteenth century, rebuilt and extended late twentieth century and not of special interest. Included for the fine quality of its interiors and their exceptional state of preservation and completeness.

DESCRIPTION
Mara's Scene Painting Shop Carpentry workshop and scenery shop. Built in 1913 to the designs of John A J Woodward of Kennington Oval, the LCC's District Surveyor for the area, by George Britain Contractor to the Duchy of Cornwall Estate. Nos. 1 & 3 was a carpentry workshop for theatrical 'props' and scenery, first occupied by John Brinskill whilst Nos. 5 & 7 housed the painted scenery shop, originally with 8 frames run in pairs and first run by William Raphael. It is the facility to design an entire theatrical set that makes this group of workshops unique. Painted brick with slate roof. 2 to 3 storeys with irregular fenestration. Left hand part (No 1) is of 2 storeys with 1 cambered sash to 2nd floor and 5 cambered fixed casements to ground floor and double doors. No 3 is of 3 storeys with hipped roof. 2 lower storeys have 4 cambered fixed casements leading door to 1st floor and wide door to ground floor. No 7 is of 3 storeys with 2 cambered fixed casements and loading door to 1st floor and 2 cambered casements and wide door to ground floor. No 7 is of 3 storeys with gable and kneelers. 2nd floor has circular windows. 1st floor has 2 narrow windows and 2 narrow unloading doors and ground floor has 3 cambered casements and wide door. Internally Nos 1 & 3 have iron columns and floor joists with cross braces. No 5 has 4 vertical frames surviving, the full height and width of the building on which the canvas could be stretched and inched up and down for the convenience of the artist working at 1st floor level. These have a drop of 24 feet and various widths between 41 ft 10 ins and 49 ft 6 ins because of the angled shape of the building. No 7 lost 4 frames through bomb damage though the gaps in the 1st floor and the system of hand pulleys survive in part. Roof of scientific kingpost form. Only 4 early theatrical painting workshops are known to exist and although the other 3 are 10 years earlier this is the only one with the facility to design and build an extra set. DESCRIPTION
Theatre centre, formerly fire station. Built in 1881 and designed by the Metropolitan Board of Works Architect's Department, probably by Robert Pearsall in Gothic style. Red brick in Flemish bond and tiled roof. 3 storeys and attics 8 windows. 4 tall ribbed brick chimneystacks. Attic storey has 4 gables with stone kneelers with 2 paired 8 pane sashes to ends and 2 single 8 pane sashes to centre. Stone band below with corbels. 2nd floor has 8 8-pane sashes. 1st floor has 8 similar sashes with arched lintels interrupting moulded terracotta band. Ground floor has triple 8-pane windows on each side under drip mould. Centre has projecting porch with gable surmounted by finial in centre and finials at sides and 2 wide doors below with 4 colonnettes inserted in sides. The principal feature of the building is a tall octagonal watch tower at the right side of the building with corbelling and lancet windows. Interior has wooden staircase with stick balusters. In 1913 this fire station housed a station officer, nine firemen, two coachmen, 2 pairs of horses, one horsed fire engine, one horsed escape, one manual escape and one hose cart. Shortly afterwards it became redundant, being replaced by the station further north in Norwood Road. Listing NGR: TQ3196872034

DESCRIPTION
Fire station built 1914-15 by London Council Architect's Department, architect unknown. Stone ground floor with reddish brown brick above; hipped tiled roofs. PLAN: Rectangular front range of 5 storeys with a pair of full-height short wings to rear and single storey service ranges framing rear yard. EXTERIORS: Stone ground floor has 3 appliance entrances with moulded openings then four shall windows over 3 and a door to right, there also with moulded surrounds and cills. Return elevation to left has two semi-circular windows. 1st to 3rd floor in brick with seven window bays, those to sides and centre advanced bays with curved sides and parapets. Windows are 6-over-6 and 4-over-4 pane wooden sashes with red brick gauged flat arches and sides. Return elevation to left has central 3-storey oriel with stone base, and irregularly placed similar windows. Deep hipped tiled roofs, low and overhanging to front except in the 3 bays with parapets; 7 dormers to front, each with small hipped roof. Tall chimneys of narrow rectangular plan, some set on end to street. Right return elevation blind and with stone shoulders to chimneystack, which has been rebuilt at top. REAR elevation is red brick to left and otherwise stock brick. Central continuous balcony at 2nd to 4th floors joins advanced wing to right with hipped roof and 2 window bays of paired sashes, with apartment entrances to centre and advanced wing bay to right. Above these a pair of gables with hung tile to apex. At ground floor, a series of service buildings project, the most interesting is the 3 round arched window bays of the recreation room to right. The 2 central openings to appliance bays are plain and to left, the red brick former wash house, this with raised lantern room and flat tile arches over sashes. Beyond these, a series of shallow lavatories and storage sheds of less distinction then through an arched opening the pair of cottages, which are in similar idiom but much altered and of not of special architectural interest. INTERIOR: Some modernisation for station use but plan largely intact. Interest includes arched openings between the watch and appliance rooms, recreation room with two-thirds height panelling and arched niches, open staircase with metal balusters to rear, in situ pole to appliance room, and some plain fittings in the section house apartments above where plan and fitting changes have been necessary. HISTORY: The fire station at 445 Norwood Road was built 1914-15 to the designs of the London county Council Architect's Department. Drawings title 'LCC West Norwood FBS' show the building much as it is today, with room for three appliances, watch room, reading room wash house and services at ground floor, and three flats (one-,two- and three-bedroom at each floor) to each of the four storeys above. ASSESSMENT OF IMPORTANCE: This 1914-15 LCC fire station has an architecturally strong Queen Anne façade yet it also expresses and Arts and Crafts idiom through its good quality materials, deep tiled roofs and prominent chimneys. While possessing a domestic architectural quality it has a strong municipal presence in the streetscape, emphasising the appliance opening with the refined stone ground floor. The station is remarkably intact (still in use as a fire station at the time of listing) retaining its overall plan, exterior detailing and some interior interest and considering the capital's pre-eminence in fire station design, having the earliest surviving nationally (1860s) and an architecturally distinctive batch from successive periods after then, it is endowed with an additional interest. It also compares well with the few stations from its decade already listed.

PLANNING (LISTED BUILDINGS AND CONSERVATION AREAS) ACT 1990

112th AMENDMENT OF THE 65th LIST OF BUILDINGS OF SPECIAL

ARCHITECTURAL OR HISTORIC INTEREST

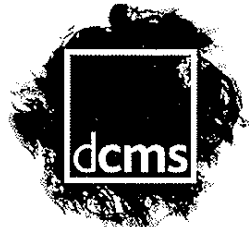

LONDON BOROUGH OF LAMBETH

WHEREAS:

1. Section 1 of the Planning (Listed Buildings and Conservation Areas) Act 1990 ("the Act") requires the Secretary of State, for the purposes of the Act and with a view to the guidance of local planning authorities in the performance of their functions under the Act and the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 in relation to buildings of special architectural or historic interest, to compile lists of such buildings, and he may amend any list so compiled.
2. On 27 March 1981, the Secretary of State compiled a list of buildings of special architectural or historic interest situate in the London Borough of Lambeth.
3. The Secretary of State, having consulted with the Historic Buildings and Monuments Commission for England and such other persons or bodies of persons who appear to him appropriate as having special knowledge of, and interest in, such buildings, considers that the said list should be amended in the manner set out in the Schedule hereto.

NOW THEREFORE the Secretary of State, in exercise of the powers conferred on him by Section 1 of the Act, hereby amends the said list in the manner set out in the Schedule hereto.

No. 445
West Norwood Fire Station

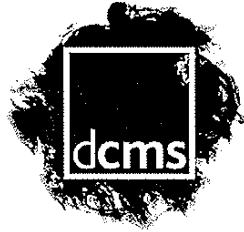

II

Fire station with flats above. Built 1914-15 by London County Council Architects' Department.

MATERIALS: Red brick; Stock brick rear elevation; Portland stone; clay tile roofs.

PLAN: Rectangular main front range with projecting wings to rear; irregular roof plan. Ground-floor fire station with (originally) 3 flats per floor to upper floors, served by rear stair.

EXTERIOR: Restrained Arts and Crafts style. 4 storeys plus attic, with 5 storey set back wing to N projecting into rear yard. Ground floor has 3 appliance bays to N then two narrow transomed windows (glazing replaced), a pedestrian entrance and a further similar window. Above this the façade is virtually symmetrical, of 5 bays with windows arranged 1-2-1-2-1. Projecting outer and central bays with concave returns and parapets breaking through the deep eaves. Windows are 6-over-6 and 4-over-4 pane wooden sashes with red brick gauged flat arches and sides. Return elevation to N has 2 semi-circular windows central 3-storey oriel with curved returns and moulded stone corbel, and irregularly-placed similar windows. Deep hipped tiled roofs; 7 tall hipped dormers. Tall chimneys, some set on end to street. Gabled S return elevation blind and with stone shoulders to chimneystack, which has been rebuilt at top. Irregular rear elevation has a 2-window projecting wing to N end and a narrower one of 1 window to penultimate bay to S, an end bay of 1 window, plus setback bay of 1 window. Elevation between these projecting wings has 2 appliance bays with plain surrounds, balconies at 1st to 4th floors, surmounted by a pair of gables with hung tile to apex. Windows mainly paired 4-over-4 light sashes; those to end S bay and S recessed bay segmental headed. On the N side, linked to the projecting wing, is a single-storey flat-roofed recreation room with 3 segmental-headed windows and 6-over-9 sashes. A lavatory block and storage sheds follow (not of special interest). On the S side is the single storey red-brick former wash house, this with raised lantern roof and flat tile arches over sashes.

INTERIOR: Some modernisation for station use but plan largely intact. Appliance room with iron stanchions supporting cross girders. Arched openings between the watch and appliance rooms. Open well staircase with iron balustrade to rear. Interiors of flats have generally been modernised; some modest fittings and joinery survive, but these areas are of limited interest. Recreation room in N rear extension has two-thirds height panelling and arched niches.

HISTORY: Fire services in London emerged principally from the need for insurance providers to limit their losses through damage to property in the period after the Great Fire of 1660. Initially, each insurer maintained a separate brigade that only served subscribers until the foundation of an integrated service in 1833, funded by City businesses. In 1866, following an Act of Parliament of the previous year, the first publicly-funded authority charged with saving lives and protecting buildings from fire was founded: the Metropolitan Fire Brigade, initially part of the Metropolitan Board of Works. The earliest MFB fire stations were generally plain brick and few pre-1880 examples survive. In 1880s under the MFB architect Robert Pearsall, fire stations acquired a true architectural identity, most notably in the rich Gothic style typical of Victorian municipal buildings such as Bishopsgate. It was the building boom of the 1890s-1900s however that was to transform fire station architecture and give the Brigade some of its most characterful buildings. In 1889, the fire brigade passed to the newly-formed London County Council, and from 1896 new stations were designed by a group of architects lead by Owen Fleming and Charles Canning Winmill, both formerly of the LCC Housing Department, who brought the highly experimental methods which had evolved for designing new social housing to the Fire Brigade Division (as the department was called from 1899), and drew on a huge variety of influences to create unique and commanding stations, each built to a bespoke design and plan. This exciting period in fire station design continued to the outbreak of WWI, although there was some standardisation of design in the period. The original West Norwood fire station (originally named Norwood) was built 1881-2 at No 2a Norwood High Street (qv), now the South London Theatre. Drawings entitled 'LCC West Norwood FBS' show the 1914-15 building much as it is today, with room for three appliances, watch room, reading room, wash house and services at ground floor, and three flats (one-, two- and three- bedroom at each floor) to each of the floors above.

Andrew Saint, 'London's Architecture and the London Fire Brigade, 1866-1938' (Heinz Gallery RIBA, Exhibition Catalogue, 1981)

REASONS FOR DESIGNATION: West Norwood Fire Station is designated at Grade II for the following principal reasons:

* Of special architectural interest as one of a remarkable series of fire stations built by the LCC between 1896-1914, each executed to a bespoke design, which are widely admired as being among the most accomplished achievements of this exceptionally rich and prolific period of LCC civic architecture;

- * An elegantly modulated façade in the free Arts and Crafts spirit of earlier stations, tempered with neo-Georgian restraint. It exhibits the quality of materials and attention to detail which are the hallmarks of LCC design; the principal elevations are virtually intact;
- * Some internal features of interest, including the panelled recreation room.

DESCRIPTION
Chest tomb on tall plinth above a vault. c1858 by E.M. Barry; sculptures by Thomas Earp. Pink granite plinth, marble superstructure and Portland stone sculpture. Medieval Italian style. Rectangular stone base on which the battered pink marble plinth with a top frieze of Minton tiles carrying the letter B for Berens and a bear, in punning reference to his name; doorway on western elevation now bricked up but originally with bronze doors manufactured by Potter who also made surrounding cast iron railings, now gone. Free-standing, paired barley sugar columns surround the chest and support a foliated cornice; above each pair, a sculptured kneeling angel holding a shield. At the angles the cornice rises up to form pointed arch aedicules for figures of the 4 evangelists. Between the columns, panels carved in deep relief showing scenes from the life of Christ; eastern panel an open-work cross within a roundel. A further frieze of Minton tiles, including a Latin inscription, under the eaves cornice with antefixae. Hipped marble roof. All in a state of considerable decay. Berens was a linen draper of St. Paul's Churchyard who made a fortune in the "fancy trade; the tomb was said to have cost £1,500 and was illustrated in the Builder of November 1858. Listing NGR: TQ3232072051

DESCRIPTION
Catacombs, formerly beneath the Anglican chapel now replaced with a Remembrance Garden. c1837 by Sir William Tite to accommodate some 2,000 coffins. Externally, only a flight of curving entrance steps and 6 semi-circular light shaft openings with grilles are visible. Internally, the entrance hall (altered), then a central axial hall with 3 long corridors leading off each side. Central hall arcaded on each side, each arch filled with a private vault resembling C15 chantry chapels with Gothic stone structure including blind arcading and badges; entered by "Tudor" cast iron grille doors with badges. Each corridor lined with recesses, screened off by fine Gothic style metal doors, and most containing coffin shelves. At the ends of each corridor are light shafts constructed of pale brick and having vaulted ceilings; circular light openings set in ceilings of outer corridors now blocked. Floors originally paved with stone slabs, now bare earth. Centrally situated hydraulic catafalque and hand-operated pump, manufactured by Messrs. Bramah and Robinson, 1839 (plaque attached to upright rail). This catafalque was used to silently lower coffins from the Anglican chapel into the vaults below and was considered somewhat of a novelty in its day being a remarkable instance of the marriage of industrial technology to the traditional business of undertaking and interment. The only other surviving catafalque machinery comparable is at Kensal Green. The Tite family vaults are situated immediately to the right of the entrance. West Norwood has lost both its Anglican and Non-Conformist mortuary chapels which were demolished in 1960 and 1955 respectively following war damage. Listing NGR: TQ3237972070

DESCRIPTION
Mausoleum with attached forecourt kerbing and paving. Built 1931 although Maddick did not die until 1939. Architect unknown. Portland stone. Square plan, stepped at the base, with unusual scooped-profile, tapering stone roof pierced by a tall glazed cross shaped window on each face, surmounted by sculptured figures of Christ, left hand raised in blessing, and a young child; bay leaf eaves cornice. Central entrance of enriched, eared stone door case with central, inset stepped pediment having a sculptured armorial device surmounted by a fluted lamp; glazed bronze double doors the central panels forming a cross, of similar shape to those on the roof, with the-letter DM set on it referring not only to the name of the deceased but also the traditional sepulchral abbreviation DOM. Other 3 sides each pierced by a window having a surround similar to the door case but without the pediment; patterned glazing including crosses with circular centres. Interior marble lined with Ionic pilasters supporting a festoon frieze, mosaic floor, marble side benches decorated with wreaths in imitation of sarcophagi, glazed domed ceiling with mosaic spandrels including a lamp design. Marble urns on window sills. Inset wall tablets of interest for humanistic sentiment characteristic of a strain of Anglicanism of the period; examples of the inscriptions read "To the many sacred friends whose love and devotion made the world beautiful for me", "Fear no one", "pain no one", "Hate no one", "Envy no one" and the words "Hope", "Light" and "Life" are inscribed on the coping. Forecourt paving laid in Omega shape with inset symbols of Alpha and Omega; raised kerb with dies containing flower holders. Maddick was a surgeon who also rebuilt the Scala Theatre, 1905 and was Director of Kinematography in WW I. Listing NGR: TQ3239972054
